AMERICAN HEROES

A Medal of Honor posthumously, died after climbing to death a ledge with a machine gun and mortar nest. Going to the relief of a platoon isolated by the enemy in Dutch New Guinea, he crawled to the Nip's position, was wounded and his rifle crippled, but charged in, swinging. After a shot dropped Eubank, he again killed 41 and effected the relief. War Bonds help equip such heroes.

Liberty Chapel

Liberty Chapel, July 10. Wheat harvest is over. The crop in general in this community is rather unsatisfactory, due to the heavy spring frost and also much damage was done by the heavy fly.

Gardens were badly damaged by the drought. However it is not too late to plant again for fall canning.

After a short visit with his daughter in Richmond, Mrs. Alice Grow is at home with her sister, Mrs. Poma Megginson for the summer.

Remote Sinking Called

Sinking, where civil war is reported, raging between rebel Moslems and Chinese troops, has been called Asia's 'center of gravity' in the heart of the world's largest and mass, this westernmost Chinese province is nearly a thousand air miles over deserts and high mountains, from the nearest open water at the Bay of Bengal, points out the National Geographic society. It has no railways. Its roads are more or less modernized versions of ancient caravan trails that men knew before Marco Polo. It is remote, isolated from its neighbors by natural barriers, and little traveled.

Yet, because of its location, Sinking is also, paradoxically a passageway for traffic and a significant buffer land where Russian, Chinese, and British-Indian influences meet. When China was all but isolated from the outside world by Japanese blockade, it was through Sinking-level Fann.

This remote inner region has long been the object of scientific investigation and exploration.

Hitler's Effort to Split Allies Failed

Reds Arming Nazis to Fight England, His Story.

SOUTHERN GERMANY. — Adolf Hitler's principal secretary said the Fuehrer made a last desperate effort to split the Allies by ordering Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels to plant a story that the Russians were arming 200,000 Germans to fight England.

But when the plot failed, when front communications were broken, Hitler decided on the afternoon of April 22 that all was lost and declared he knew he would die in Berlin, said the secretary, Gerhard Hergesell, who believes the Fuehrer lies dead somewhere in the capital.

The secretary said he left Berlin that same April 22 for Berchtesgaden with thousands of pages of notes on the inside story of Germany at the time of the last two days.

With a staff of eight, he now is in a southern German city transcribing his shorthand.

The secretary asserted that even after Hitler abandoned the hope in mid-April of splitting the Allies, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop and Goebbels still clung to the delusion that Britain would turn on Russia.

In ordering Goebbels and Reich Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering to put out the story of Russians arming Germans, Hitler was partly phrased by Hergesell as follows:

"Let us among the British. I am sure they don't realize as yet that the Russian planes are. Maybe we got the British to thinking the Russians are going beyond the boundaries they promised to keep behind earlier in the war."

Really, we have something to go on. The English ought to see that the German National Movement (of captured generals in Moscow) really is a danger to them, because if the Russians can organize the generals, there will be an important fighting tool of Germans the Russians can use."

Ironing Rayon. Ironing technique for rayons is of vital interest to homemakers, since the uses of rayon and its acceptance as one of the basic textile fibers for all types of clothing, as well as for many household uses, are constantly increasing. Avoid ironing rayon when it is too wet, because this dries the fabric too suddenly, causing hard and sharp lines at the hem, collar and cuffs. It also causes stretching and flattening of the fabric and sometimes a rippled hem. Iron rayon on the wrong side to preserve the surface texture. Use a brush and avoid iron shine. Iron rayon appears more quickly on dark rayon than on light rayon.

ESTABLISHED 1893

Collins Favors

School Program For Virginia

Richmond, Va., July 18. — Full support of the Perry Commission educational program to the limit of sound economy was pledged by Lewis V. Collins, a delegate to the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor in a campaign which will be held in the Clay ward Democratic Club.

Asserting that the majority of public school graduates need vocational training rather than college and university degrees, Mr. Collins advocated the inclusion of health and public welfare training in elementary and high school curricula and urged the inclusion of vocational and manual arts instruction.

Mr. Collins reiterated his approval of the progressive educational program sponsored by the Darden Foundation and pledged himself to continued support of that program.

"The education of the people," he said, "should include not only instruction in the field of conservation and the need for expansion of our agricultural resources, but also the protection of Virginia's natural resources."

Mr. Collins said that the state's natural resources and its continued development coupled with a sane program of conservation of our natural resources should be one of the principal purposes of the state government.

Results of Farm Census in

Appomattox County Given

The number of farms in the County of Appomattox, as shown by the preliminary count of the 1945 census count, is 1,141, as compared with 1,122 in 1940, and 1,217 in 1935. This was announced today by Bayard M. Spencer, supervisor of the 1945 farm census in the Fourth Virginia Census District, with headquarters at Petersburg, Virginia.

The total land in farms in Appomattox County, according to the preliminary 1945 census count was 142,029 acres, as compared with 141,109 acres in 1940, and 154,000 acres in 1935.

The market for electric refrigerators was demonstrated here recently at an auction sale, when 400 of the OPA ceiling price were put in for a refrigerator.

The auctioneer put names of bidders in a hat and drew to see which bid would be accepted.

This method is usually followed where more than one person bids the ceiling price.
